Retention guidelines

Personal information about customers shall be erased no later than 30 days once their account has been closed.
Backup copies holding personal information are retained for a maximum of 90 days.
Only employees whose role requires it can access customer records.
PAN and Aadhaar numbers are to be kept in encrypted form and masked whenever they appear in reports.
Each customer request to delete data needs to be finished inside seven days and recorded.
The marketing department is not allowed to copy customer lists onto personal laptops, phones or email.
Owners of data check the access list for sensitive files once every three months.
Logs that include personal information get deleted after twelve months.
Suppliers handling customer information have to sign a data processing agreement before starting.
Possible data breaches must be escalated to the security team in under sixty minutes.
Personal information about customers shall be erased no later than 30 days once their account has been closed.
Backup copies holding personal information are retained for a maximum of 90 days.
Only employees whose role requires it can access customer records.
PAN and Aadhaar numbers are to be kept in encrypted form and masked whenever they appear in reports.
Each customer request to delete data needs to be finished inside seven days and recorded.
The marketing department is not allowed to copy customer lists onto personal laptops, phones or email.
Owners of data check the access list for sensitive files once every three months.
Logs that include personal information get deleted after twelve months.
Suppliers handling customer information have to sign a data processing agreement before starting.
Possible data breaches must be escalated to the security team in under sixty minutes.